Cinema: A Force Awakened

It is a period of heavy disruption and device proliferation across the nation with mass fragmentation permeating every corner of the video ecosystem. Within this challenging landscape, a bright star shines - CINEMA. With increased attendance and record box office sales, Cinema’s success is being driven by POWERFUL STORYTELLING and consumers’ desire to temporarily unplug, relax and share experiences with friends and family.

While advertisers pursue elusive MILLENNIALS across devices within this new world order, this group can easily be found - undistracted, attentive and engaged - at the local Cineplex, which has become the new living room away from the home.

Beyond just Millennials, advertisers have been flocking to cinema as a way to further engage captive, desirable audiences and the powerful force of cinema advertising has made it hard for consumers to resist taking ACTION after seeing an advertisers’ message on the big screen. Read on to discover more....

Key Heavy Movie-Going Audience Segment: “Magnetic Millennials” Archetype

Connected Collectives
Technology is their lifeline and their smartphone (114) is their connector. They strive to be accessible (111) to their friends and family whenever and wherever they are. Magnetic Millennials enjoy connecting with their circle of friends across social networks (122), are heavy Instagrammers (140) and love sharing their thoughts and opinions about their favorite TV programs in real-time on Twitter (132).

Active Acolytes
Much more than just movie goers, they’re beach-going (128), bar-hopping (127), video game-playing (152), karaoke-singing (180), museum-visiting (160), concert-going (149), sport event-attending (140), live theater-going (170) foodies (118).

Savvy Sophisticates
Career-oriented (112) and driven (114) while maintaining a strong work-life balance, they pride themselves on their sophistication (112) and indulge in finer interests like the arts (116) in their spare time. They strive to be the first one in their peer group to try a new product or service (117) and the knowledge they accumulate from this leads people to come to them for advice before making purchases (116).

Stamp My Passport!
They’re not just content with doing activities in their community either, these adventurous frequent fliers (127) and passport owners (127) are active foreign travelers (139) who select vacations that offer a variety of activities to do (114).

With a median age of 25, Magnetic Millennials value their friendships and are (almost) always connected. They’re much more than just movie-goers as they explore a variety of interests to better themselves and maintain a very active lifestyle in both their community and throughout their travels with their strong circle of friends or partner.

Source: GfK 2016 MRI Doublebase. Index (in parenthesis) = composition index vs. A18+ population. Based on “heavy” movie-going target = “gone to the movie theater at least once in the last month.”
Key Heavy Movie-Going Audience Segment: “Family Focusededs” Archetype

Curious Connectors
Technology is a huge part of their lives and they are always connected and reachable to their family (114). They use social media to follow the activities of their family & friends (122) and network with professional contacts (136). They have a habit of turning their “brand curiosity” into “brand activism” by not only connecting with brands through social platforms (121) but also sharing their opinions of services and products online (114).

Home Sweet Home!
Home is truly where their heart is as these home decorators (117) value quality family bonding time through TV nights (130) and board games (145) with their children while occasionally entertaining friends (116) with some wine & a home-cooked dinner (119).

With an adult median age of 39 who have children in the 6-12 age range, Family Focusededs are always connected to their family, either through technology or through shared bonding experiences both in and out of the home that goes well beyond movie matinees. The duality of being both savers and spenders is in direct relation to the needs of their family.

Saving Spenders
Although “Family Focusededs” are savvy with their finances (111), are moderate risk-takers looking to maximize their investments (116) and are willing to share their financial advice with others (114) while carefully monitoring their 401K to prepare for their future (117), they also enjoy living in the now and are free spenders in “family” categories like clothing/apparel (114), automotive (117), groceries (132), home entertainment and furnishings (120).

Exuberant Experiencers
They’re not just home bodies either, whether it’s a picnic in the park (122), a trek to the zoo (141), a fun weekend dinner out at a local restaurant (139) or a week-long domestic vacation (140) or cruise (146), the family values collective experiences together.

Source: GfK 2016 MRI Doublebase. Index (in parenthesis) = composition index vs. A18+ population. Based on “heavy” movie-going target = “gone to the movie theater at least once in the last month.”
In Many Categories, The “Heavy” Movie-Going Audience Is More Desirable Target Than Even The “Heavy” Internet User

Heavy movie-goers are more likely to be energetic Millennials that engage in a variety of activities beyond their devices and also families that seek out memorable bonding experiences. Because of this, movie-goers are a more attractive audience for top advertiser categories than heavy internet users.
